Bodh in India

The Bodh people live in a region described as having, "... an inhospitable terrain with little vegetation as the area falls in the arid zone. It has very scanty rainfall. Stone boulders and loose rocks keep falling all over and on small patches of terraced fields, which are usually near the riverbeds." It is very difficult to grow enough crops or support livestock in this kind of climate. But their spiritual lives are even more difficult. They depend on shamans to take care of their spiritual needs, and the spirits demands a price. The Bodh people live without a God of love and mercy.

Ministry Obstacles

They live in a remote region high in the Himalayan Mts. There are strong spiritual barriers that have not been challenged for centuries.

Outreach Ideas

Believers in India can carry the message of Christ to the Bodh people. It will take people with an ability to climb the high mountains and overcome the obstacles of Satan, leaning entirely on the power of the Holy Spirit.
