Taga of Delhi, India

Did the Taga lose Brahmin high caste status, or did they abandon it when they took to farming? Whatever the answer, today they run modern family farms, and as a people group, they are divided into two divisions. Other Tagas have left farming for the professions and civil service in the city. Although they are seen as 100 percent Hindu, a small number go as pilgrims to Sufi Muslim sites.

Ministry Obstacles

Their tendency to live on family farms isolates them. They are virtually anonymous in urban Delhi, making it very hard to reach them.

Outreach Ideas

Those engaged in civil service and the professions in urban Delhi are accessible to Christian witness in the workplace. Most Tagas are literate, so literature and the JESUS Film are outreach options. Rural Tagas may be reached at the markets. Those in the universities can be reached by campus Christian fellowships.

SCRIPTURE Surely your goodness and unfailing love will pursue me all the days of my life, and I will live in the house of the Lord forever. Ps 23:6, NLT

PRAY for leaders of today's people group to put all their hope in the Lord just like King David did when he wrote this Psalm.
