Oromo in Somalia

Though originating from the Oromo tribal clusters of Ethiopia, today the 64,000 Southern Oromo people reside only in neighboring Somalia. They exhibit group-oriented culture with authoritarian fathers and a male warrior tradition. Most live in rural areas where they make a living mainly from raising animals and farming.

Ministry Obstacles

The majority of Oromo people are Muslim; however, their traditional animistic religion is still practiced by most of the population. These people whom the Lord Jesus loves are in spiritual bondage on many fronts. In Somalia, they do not have the chance to hear that Jesus Christ offers them a better life.

Outreach Ideas

Some Oromo people move to towns, drawn by employment and modern schooling opportunities. With better internet connection, they have some chance of hearing the gospel from online sources.
