

The Darkhat of Mongolia

Darkhat speakers are known in Mongolia by the name "Oirat". But Darkhat and standard Halh are closely related. All or close to all Oirat can read standard Mongolian, even if they may pronounce words differently from standard Halh Mongolian. Many can read both the traditional vertical script, as well as the Cyrillic script promoted during the period of Soviet influence. Apparently the literacy effort in standard Mongolian has been very successful and the Darkhat are bilingual enough to read and comprehend literature in Halh Mongolian. The predominant religion of this group is unknown.

Image
Unavailable

Primary Religion:

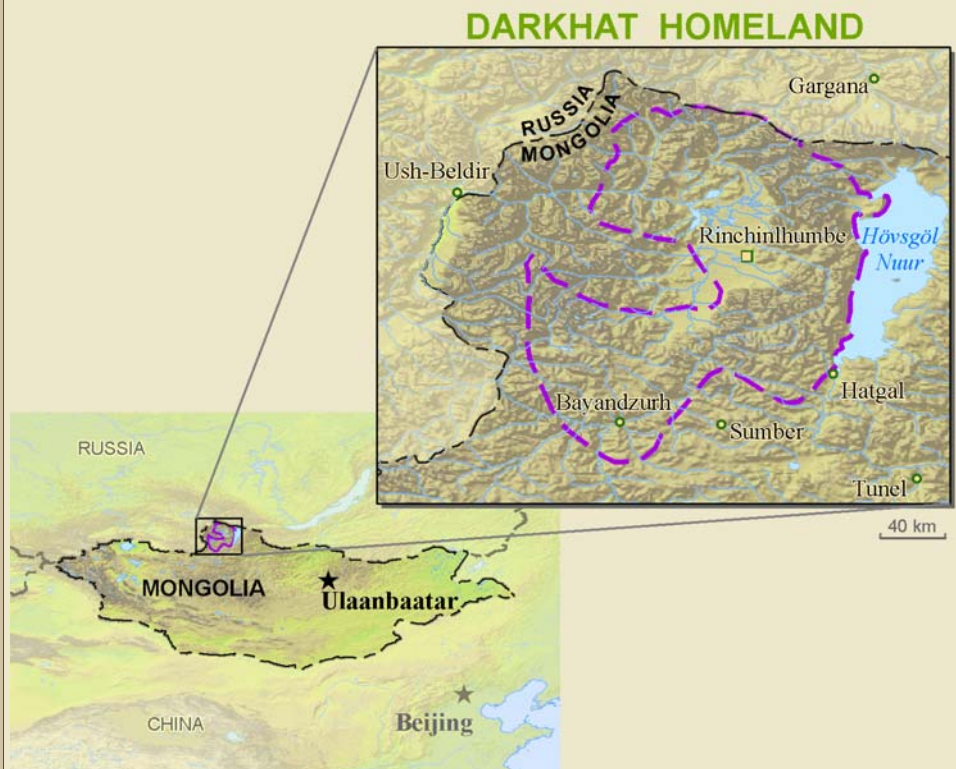

Unknown

Disciples (Matt 28.19):

Churches:

Scripture Status (Matt 28.20):

Population (date):

The Darkhat of Mongolia

Item Name

Item Note

Countries Where People Group Lives

Group Description

Country Name

Mongolia